the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are undernourished has increased from 250 million to 800 million. The number of people who are malnourished has increased from 1.2 billion to 2.3 billion. The number of people who are obese has increased from 100 million to 600 million.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the problem of malnutrition. The World Health Organization (WHO) has launched a global strategy to reduce malnutrition. The strategy is based on three pillars: (1) improving the quality of food, (2) increasing the availability of food, and (3) improving the access to food. The WHO is working with governments and other organizations to implement this strategy.

There are many reasons why malnutrition is a problem. One reason is that food is not available in all parts of the world. Another reason is that food is not of good quality. A third reason is that people do not have enough money to buy food. A fourth reason is that people do not know how to cook food. A fifth reason is that people do not have access to clean water. A sixth reason is that people do not have access to health care.

There are many ways to address the problem of malnutrition. One way is to improve the quality of food. Another way is to increase the availability of food. A third way is to improve the access to food. A fourth way is to improve the quality of food. A fifth way is to increase the availability of food. A sixth way is to improve the access to food.
